renewed activity in efforts to secure prohibition of armament manufacture, are just a few of the causes being advocated at the eighth annual meeting of the Dominion Board, W.M.S., of the United Church of Canada, which commenced a week's sessions yesterday in the Training School, St. Clair Avenue, with Canada from coast to coast represented by the delegates from the eleven Conference branches present.

President's Speech.

"It is time that we realized that religion and life go together, and that we must work now, not one individually, but corporately as a society, looking to God for help," Mrs. O. R. Crowe, President of the Dominion Board of the W.M.S., told delegates at last night's meeting. Many great needs are confronting a troubled world at the present time, she submitted.

The petition to have more religious instruction in the schools was brought in by Hamilton Conference, pointing out that the general regulations under the Department of Education of Ontario makes provision for religious instruction—"a privilege only rarely made use of." At the present time religious instruction is given in day schools as follows: Catholic children, 420 hours per year; Jewish, 180; and Protestant children, approximately 24 hours a year, it was stated. Recommendation was made that the Dominion Board present to the Department of Education of Ontario a request "that they seriously consider the introduction of Bible study in the schools as a recognized part of the curriculum, with examinations, as upon other subjects." From the London Conference came recommendations that the board consider anti-alcoholic and anti-narcotic resolutions.

Day of Prayer Sought.

"In view of the distressing conditions prevailing throughout the world with which Governments do not seem to be able to cope," the Alberta Conference urged that the Dominion Board petition the Federal Government for a National Day of Prayer "to invoke God's power in re-establishing conditions, both spiritual and economic."

Report of the Executive Committee, submitted by Miss Winnifred Thomas, showed an eventful and successful year, despite financial handicaps and economic difficulties.

"It was impossible to forget for a moment that, because of reduced funds, our missionaries have been seriously handicapped at time of unprecedented need," she said. "Yet they carried on their work cheerfully and bravely."

Of the eleven Conference branches represented, Presidents of six have already been re-elected, as follows: Alberta, Mrs. Thomas Powell; British Columbia, Mrs. W. G. Wilson; Hamilton, Mrs. J. A. Jewitt; London, Mrs. Robert Hicks; Saskatchewan, Mrs. B. J. McDonald; Toronto, Mrs. E. H. Young.

Eleven Branches Represented.

Delegates from the different branches present at the convention include: Alberta, Mrs. Thomas Powell, Mrs. R. Colwill, Mrs. H. D. Leitch; Bay of Quinte, Mrs. W. L. Smyth; Mrs. W. J. Garland, Mrs. J. E. McGee; her degree of Bachelor of Arts from Goucher College, Baltimore, Md., June 6. Miss Wittmaak's mother was formerly Annie D. Stark of Toronto.

Western, Grace Classes Graduate

Twelve doctors each gave $100 to found the Toronto Western Hospital thirty-seven years ago. Last night at the graduating exercises of the Western Division and Grace Division of the Toronto Western Hospital, Dr. John Ferguson, Secretary of the Board of Governors and Chairman of the interesting program, gave a brief history of the institution, harking back to this brave little beginning, which, he said, had been so amply justified.

The two graduating classes were presented by Miss Beatrice Ellis, Superintendent of the Western Division, and Miss Georgie Rowan, Superintendent of the Grace Division, and diplomas and pin were presented by Miss Florence H. M. Emory, President of the Canadian Nurses' Association. An address to the graduates was given by E. M. Best, M.H., Paed. D., and Dr. W. H. Young pronounced the invocation. Dr. T. Alexander Davies officiated at the organ, and following the exercises, graduates and guests proceeded across the campus to Hart House where a reception was held.

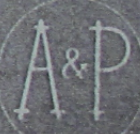

Scholarships and prizes were presented as follows:

Margaret Eaton Holds Graduation

"Today there is a calling back of the spirit of the gentleman and of the lady—a spirit which has been lost since about the time the automobile came into use."

Principal W. T. Brown, who addressed the graduating class and friends of Margaret Eaton School at the graduation exercises yesterday afternoon, commended this return of the lady, the passing of the dapper and of the women who aped men. He exhorted his listeners to cultivate this spirit of the lady; this spirit of strength, of attractiveness, of kindness, and of intuition.

"In your education here you have learned how to be graceful. Can you take your grace and translate it into a gracious spirit?" Dr. Brown asked.
Brilliance, the speaker said, had been too often stressed in education. Education, he thought, was not complete until the old-fashioned qualities of common sense and sanity of judgment had been acquired. "If you can go into a complex situation and pick of the essentials, and if in a book
you can take what you need and leave the rest, you are educated," he said.
It was the person with the well-balanced mind as well as the expert in physical training who was necessary in a community, in Dr. Brown's opinion.

Miss Mary G. Hamilton, director of the school, read the year's report. The valedictory address was read by Elizabeth Gunsaulus, and the presentation of diplomas and prizes was made by Rev. Harold W. Lang.

Two Y.W.C.A. Parties For Needy Groups

A jolly Christmas party was held at the McGill Street Y.W.C.A. last night
when a group of older unemployed women were guests of honor. The tables, arranged in the cafeteria, were attractive with holiday decorations and favors. The hostesses were representatives from the Canadian Business and Professional Women's Club
and the Women Teachers' Association.
The latter association was represented
by Miss Sara Macleod and Miss Anna
Brown, and the former by Miss Ethel Butler, the President, and a number of the members.

A handsome tree laden with gifts
was the centre of interest following the dinner, and after the gaily wrapped parcels had been opened there was a program of music and carol singing by the members of the Business and Professional Women's Club.
This evening a second such happy party will be given for a group of younger unemployed women.

IRELAND—KEENLEYSIDE.

A wedding of much interest took place yesterday afternoon in Grace Church-on-the-Hill when Helen Antoinette, daughter of Lieut.-Col. and Mrs.
C. B. Keenleyside of Regina, was married to Harry Mackay Ireland, Newark,
N.J., son of Mr. and Mrs. Archibald
Ireland of New York. Rev. J. H. Dixon conducted the ceremony, and Miss Wilma Stevenson played the wedding music. The church was attractively decorated with Christmas colors, and there was a bowl of white roses on the altar. The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a Norman Hartnell model of ivory satin, with a full tulle skirt forming a train. The short sleeves were of pearls and the neckline and the bottom of the bodice bound with the pearls. Her tulle veil was arranged in a Juliet cap effect with pearls, and she carried white roses and bouvardia. She was attended by her sister, Mrs. F. J. Mallett, wearing a graceful gown of green lace, brown velvet hat and carrying a mixed bouquet of roses, shading from a yellow to a deep bronze. Mr. F. J. Mallett was the groomsmen, and the ushers were Mr. Beaufort Belcher and Mr.
Paul Keenleyside, brother of the bride.
Mrs. Keenleyside, mother of the bride, chose a beige lace gown with black hat and wore a shoulder bouquet of orchids. Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of Mr.
and Mrs. F. J. Mallett, Wainor Road, Quebec, and are going to New York, where they will live. For travelling the bride wore a French model of dark green crinkle crepe, with heavy ivory lace collar and yoke, small matching hat and brown caracul coat.

Man She Nicknamed "Hermes" Died Just Before Mrs. Eaton

In connection with the death of Mrs. Timothy Eaton, a strange and touching story was rounded to a mysterious climax. It was related to-day by Mrs. George Nasmith, for many years a friend of Mrs. Eaton and a collaborator with her in the establishment of the Margaret Eaton
School of Literature and Expression.

At the school, the first janitor and messenger was Joe Fisher. Playfully, Mrs. Eaton called him
"Hermes," after the messenger of the gods in ancient Greek mythology.
And "Hermes" he was ever afterwards. Everybody called him
"Hermes." Especially was he devoted to the service of Mrs. Eaton.

Nobody at that time ever thought about another function of "Hermes"
in the old myths. He was the conductor of souls to the other world.

To-day, by a strange and mysterious coincidence, the friends of Lady Eaton are thinking about it. For on Thursday night Joe Fisher died.
Monday, one day before Mrs. Eaton's funeral, he was buried in Mount Pleasant cemetery.

To-day Mrs. Nasmith related how she was waiting at her home Friday morning for news of Mrs. Eaton's condition. The telephone rang. A trembling voice said: "Mrs. Nasmith, grandfather died last night—
Joe Fisher. You remember —
'Hermes'."

Nobody was more interested in
Mrs. Eaton's health than Hermes.
Often he used to telephone to inquire about her. At the time of his death he was 81 years of age.

Great Help to Eaton—

Margaret Wilson Beattie, widow of Timothy Eaton, founder of the T. Eaton Company, died at 930 Saturday night. The end had been expected for several hours and she passed away peacefully.

Exactly one week after she celebrated her ninety-first birthday, in good health for her years, Mrs. Eaton contracted pneumonia suddenly last Wednesday, the illness being extremely serious from the beginning because of her advanced age. On Saturday morning doctors told the assembled family that the end might come at any minute, and described her condition as "very precarious."

The entire Eaton establishment in Toronto will be closed all day Tuesday, when the funeral will be held.

Death came to this beloved lady at her country home, "Raymar," which fronts the Toronto-Hamilton Highway just within the town of Oakville. The grounds fringe Lake Ontario, and the low hospitable house was a favorite retreat of Mrs. Eaton, who entertained many friends there since its opening about seven years ago. Across the doorway at "Raymar," in carved oak, is an inscription which typifies the simple, friendly spirit that was Mrs. Eaton's.

"The lintel low enough to keep out pomp and pride,
The threshold high enough to turn the door hard strong enough from robbers to defend
This door will open at a touch to welcome every friend."

Her city home was at 132 Towler ave., and then there was "Raven-scar" on Lake Rosseau, Muskoka, where Mrs. Eaton loved to spend part of each year.

WED AT ST. MARY'S

Deep Mourning

For Mrs. Eaton

To-day a hush seemed to hang over the great Eaton store, although its activities were not suspended. It will be closed all day to-morrow, as will be the Margaret Eaton School, whose staff and student representatives will attend the funeral service. Miss Mary G. Hamilton, principal of the school, paid this tribute to Mrs. Eaton:

"The alumnae who have come in contact with her gracious presence have the deepest regard and affection for her. The present school, who have not had the privilege of knowing her personally, feel and respect the great spirit of her generosity which founded the institution which bears her name."

CITY'S TRIBUTE.

"I could not let this sorrowful occasion pass without paying sincere tribute to Mrs. Timothy Eaton, who, with her husband, has been so closely associated with the commercial life of the city," said Mayor Stewart to-day.

"After a long life of usefulness she has passed to her reward, leaving many who knew and loved her well to mourn the passing of a friend. Her graciousness and her kindly interest in those who experienced misfortune endeared her to multitudes of our citizens upon whose behalf I express our deep sympathy to the members of her immediate family."

OPEN HER GUEST.

Rev. Canon H. F. D. Woodcock, now rector of Christ Church, Deer Park, but until ten years ago the incumbent of St. Jude's Anglican Church at Oakville, was asked to assist at the service because of the friendship and esteem in which he was held by the late Mrs. Eaton. She did not attend his church, but he was often a guest at "Raymar."

Canon Woodcock expressed this tribute:

"The striking qualities of Mrs. Timothy Eaton's character were, first, her kindly nature, evidenced in generous hospitality and disposition to help all people well; second, her forthrightness and common-sense, her hatred of pretence and sham; third, her humor. Those who knew her at all well will always associate the recollection of her with her humor and clever, entertaining conversation."

At the left is a recent photograph of Mrs. Eaton, at the right her home "Raymar," and a picture taken when she was in her twenties.

The entire Eaton establishment in Toronto will be closed all day Tuesday, when the funeral will be held. WED AT ST. MARY'S
Mrs. Timothy Eaton, whose maiden name was Margaret Wilson Beattie, 1842. Her parents Joseph Beattie, a general merchant, and Elizabeth (Tut) Beattie lived near the corner of Church and Adelaide streets, but soon after this date moved to Woodstock. There Margaret Beattie was educated and grew to womanhood. As a school girl she revealed qualities of capability, originality and energy, and so developed a personality of charm and distinction. Whatever she undertook she did well. She pursued the study of music with diligence, she had rare taste in dress, she rode superbly, and her housewife ability received recognition in prizes won at the Fall Fairs for breadmaking and fancy work. In 1867 while visiting a friend in a "country store" there was a year later they were married.

For seven years they lived and worked in the pretty Western Ontario town and here her two elder children were born. Although Mrs. Eaton's prime interest was in book-making arts she was the active helpmate of her husband in every way. Mrs. Eaton consulted her on every important move in the business and set a high value upon her judgment. It was her approval that decided him to come to Toronto in 1869 and establish the business that has grown to such mighty proportions. It was her enthusiasm for shorter hours that encouraged him to pioneer the policy of early closing, in the days when stores generally remained open until late every evening. She had a steady interest in all the activities of the store. Mrs. Eaton was one of the members of the original Board of Directors when the business became an incorporated company in 1891, but later, at her request, Harry McGee took her place on the board.

EMPLOYEES HER FRIENDS
Mrs. Eaton's knowledge of the Store was wonderfully complete, every employee in the early days was her friend, and many of them were frequent guests at her table. Even when the staff was numbered by hundreds she provided an annual entertainment for all, in association with her husband, and if sickness came to any, her personal interest and help were assured. Mrs. Timothy Eaton was the first "Welfare Department" of the institution, and the employees recognized her sympathy and kindness as genuine.

FOUNDER OF SCHOOL
Mrs. Eaton possessed remarkable ability as a dramatic reader, and it was through her great love of literature that the Margaret Eaton School of Literature and Expression was founded in 1907. Mrs. Eaton had always been a lover of art and a generous patron of the artists. Recently she made a notable contribution to the Art Gallery of Toronto in the form of a sculpture in marble by the famous Serbian sculptor, Ivan Mestrovic, entitled "Mother at Prayer."

The Eaton Memorial Church, opened in December, 1915, was originated solely by Mrs. Eaton, who personally superintended the details of architecture and decoration. Mrs. Eaton was a staunch Methodist, and since Church Union, a member of the United Church, and was always ready to further the interests of her church. She was particularly interested in the work in Earlscourt.

INTEREST IN HUSBAND'S WORK
It is over seventeen years since Mr. Timothy Eaton died. Although advanced in years, Mrs. Eaton made her husband's work the outstanding interest of her life. She was not identified with any of the various women's organizations, and distributed her many generous gifts to charity in a quiet way.

Mrs. Eaton had eight children, three of whom survive her. They are Mrs. Josephine Burnside and Mrs. C. E. Burden, both of Toronto, and Col. William Fletcher Eaton, of Oakville. The other children were her eldest son, Edward Young Eaton, who died in October, 1900, at the age of 37; two sons died in infancy; George, who was drowned in boyhood; and the late Sir John Craig Eaton.

Sixteen grandchildren and eleven great-grandchildren also survive Mrs. Eaton, besides a sister Mrs. O. K. Bishop and a brother, Mr. George Beattie. The grandchildren are: Timothy Eaton, John David Eaton, Gilbert McCrea Eaton, Edgar Eaton and Florence Mary Eaton, children of the late Sir John Eaton and Lady Eaton; and Mrs. George Leishman Ruth Eaton, Margaret Eaton, and Noel Eaton, children of Col. William Eaton; Mrs. W. A. Bishop, Mrs. Earl Smith, Henry Burden, Eaton Burden, children of Mrs. C. E. Burden; Mrs. Harry Coulson and Mrs. Alice Eaton, children of the late E. Y. Eaton; and Mrs. Burnside's son, Mr. Alan Burnside, who resides in London, England. A keen business woman as well as a good wife, Mrs. Eaton was Timothy Eaton's greatest inspiration. This he to mourn the passing of a friend. Her graciousness and her kindly interest in those who experienced misfortune endeared her to multitudes of our citizens, upon whose behalf I express our deep sympathy to the members of her immediate family."

OFTEN HER GUEST.
Rev. Canon H. F. D. Woodcock, now rector of Christ Church, Deer Park, but until ten years ago the incumbent of St. Jude's Anglican Church at Oakville, was asked to assist at the service because of the friendship held by the late Mrs. Eaton. She did not attend his church, but he was often a guest at "Raymar."

Canon Woodcock expressed this tribute:

"The striking qualities of Mrs. Timothy Eaton's character were, first, her kindly nature, evidenced in generous hospitality and disposition to wish all people well; second, her forthrightness and common-sense, her hatred of pretence and sham; third, her humor. Those who knew her at all will always associate the recollection of her with her humor and clever, entertaining conversation."

SECOND ELLEN TERRY
Mrs. George G. Nasmith, first principal of the Margaret Eaton School of Literature and Expression, said:

"Margaret W. Eaton was a truly great woman. For over thirty years I have known and loved her. If in early life she had studied dramatic art, I believe she would have been a second Ellen Terry. I have never heard any one read Shakespeare with greater simplicity, beauty of diction, and rhythm."

"Canada may be proud of the woman who so generously gave of her wealth to build the school named after her—the Margaret Eaton School of Literature and Expression—and thousands of its pupils the world a friend."

Mrs. Jessie Alexander Roberts, a close friend, said: "Mrs. Eaton was a whole-souled, generous lady. She was always delighted to share her pleasures, and in fact everything she had, with her friends. She was kindly toward every one, and had that gracious quality of inspiring devotion in friends and in domestics. She saw that even the messenger boys were remembered or rewarded. She entertained a great deal, and loved to have her friends at her home."

READ TO HUSBAND.
Two weeks ago Mrs. Roberts visited her at "Raymar," and remarked, "She had always possessed wonderful vitality. She read a great deal, and even latterly could read without her glasses."

Mrs. Roberts, who first knew Mrs. Eaton through having her daughter, Margaret (now Mrs. C. E. Burden), as a pupil, recalled that Mrs. Eaton used to read whole novels to her husband when they were summering at their Lake Rosseau residence, "Raymar," and was a very expressive reader.

admitted freely during his lifetime. In those days at St. Mary's, where Mrs. Eaton first met the young man who was to become her partner through life, he made several unsuccessful attempts to meet her on the street before achieving an introduction.

COURTIED IN ST. MARY'S.
"Something warned me that this young man was likely to prove dangerous, and when he approached, I always crossed the road to avoid meeting him," Mrs. Eaton had since remarked humorously. But the youthful Mr. Eaton was patient, and a year later they were married and the forty-five years of married life which followed were full of happiness.

It was while he was conducting a small dry goods store in St. Mary's that Mr. Eaton learned to value the keen intuition of his wife and her ability to judge human character. To her shrewd judgment of men and things he owed a great deal of his subsequent success. She was always ready to help him.

"A GOOD SPORT"
At the age of seventy-eight, thirteen years ago, she joyously accompanied her son Sir John Eaton, in an airplane flight over the Muskoka Lakes. The pilot on this trip was her grand-daughter's husband, Col. William Bishop, V.C., the renowned war ace. "Mother," said Sir John after the landing, "I never was so proud of you as at this moment—seventy-eight and a good sport."

Eagerly entering into all Sir John's philanthropic, charitable and patriotic activities, co-operating with him in the building of the Timothy Eaton Memorial Church and the Surgical Wing of the General Hospital, intelligent, resolute, merry and perpetually young, she commanded the affection of all. Her donations to churches, hospitals, and many charitable institutions have earned for her the gratitude of thousands.

A story is told in Col. Nasmith's biography of her husband, of how a certain young man was sent up from the store to hang blinds and curtains in their new home on Lowther ave. At 12 o'clock he was slipping out to luncheon, when he met Mrs. Eaton.

"Where are you going?" she asked.

"To get some lunch," he replied.

"You just stay here and have dinner with us," she said, and he stayed and was placed next to Mr. Eaton in the place of honor. After that the boy was an honored guest for every day of the week in which he worked at the job. He is now a wealthy man in a high position, but he looks back to that invitation of Mrs. Eaton's as one of the greatest compliments of his life.

And this is just one example of the many little things which Mrs. Eaton did throughout her life which endeared her to those about her, and proclaimed her to be a woman of a big heart as well as of ability.

truly expressed by Mrs. Eaton in various ways—one of which was her gift each year of exquisite blooms for the tables of the Navy League's annual dinner, in memory of her son, the late Sir John Eaton. But there were countless things of this kind which she did quite unknown to any one but a few of those immediately concerned. Her closest and dearest friends said of her that she was ever doing kindnesses and bringing comfort and happiness "quietly and in secret—her left hand never knew what her right was doing." Her friendship was treasured by many. "She was goodness itself and such a staunch friend," said one, and her children and children's children revered and revered her.

Long years ago when Timothy Eaton was laying the foundation for a great enterprise his loyal and devoted wife was in every sense of the word a helpmate. She went to the store with him, helped him in many, many ways, and was a personal friend to his employees. In those early days, if an employee was away through illness, Mrs. Eaton wasted no time in taking her good broths and jellies to tempt a flagging appetite. If some one left to be married there was a wedding gift.

Friends' Tribute.

Of her host of friends during her long and eventful life, two were outstanding. Last night heartfelt tribute to the late Mrs. Eaton was paid by Mrs. George Nasmith and Mrs. Jessie Alexander Roberts, who spoke on behalf of many others.

Mrs. George G. Nasmith, pioneer Principal of the Margaret Eaton School of Literature and Expression, said of Mrs. Eaton: "Margaret W. Eaton was a truly great woman. For over thirty years I have known and loved her. If in early life she had studied dramatic art, I believe she would have been a second Ellen Terry. I have never heard any one read Shakespeare with greater simplicity, beauty of diction and rhythm.

"Canada may be proud of the woman who so generously gave of her wealth to build the school named after her—the Margaret Eaton School of Literature and Expression—and thousands of its pupils the world over honor, love and revere her name. She was a great humanitarian, and tonight they, with me, are bereft of a friend."

Mrs. Jessie Alexander Roberts said: "Mrs. Eaton was a whole-souled, generous lady. She was always delighted to share her pleasures, and in fact everything she had, with her friends. She was kindly toward every one, and had that gracious quality of inspiring devotion in friends and in domestics. She saw that even the messenger boys were remembered or rewarded. She entertained a great deal, and loved to have her friends at her home."

Mrs. Roberts remembered especially visits to the Muskoka residence, Ravenscrag, on Lake Rosseau. "I saw her about two weeks ago at her home in Oakville. She had always possessed wonderful vitality. She read a great deal, and even latterly could read without her glasses."

Mrs. Roberts first came in contact with Mrs. Eaton through her work, having had Mrs. Eaton's daughter, Margaret, now Mrs. C. E. Burden, as a pupil. Mrs. Eaton, she said, was always keenly interested in dramatics, and was herself a very expressive reader. In Mr. Eaton's time she used to read whole novels to her husband when at their summer home. She was interested in the new poetry, and she loved to keep pace with the progress of literature in general.

Living are two daughters, Josephine (Mrs. Burnside) and Margaret (Mrs. C. E. Burden), both of Toronto, and one son, Colonel William Fletcher Eaton, of Oakville, and sixteen grandchildren and eleven great-grandchildren. She is also survived by one sister, Mrs. C. F. Bishop, and one brother, George Beattie.

days when stores generally remained open until late every evening.

Mrs. Eaton was a lover of books and a great reader, her mind a storehouse of many choice bits of poetry. She was deeply interested in the drama, and formed among her intimate friends a dramatic club which met weekly in her own home. This organization was the beginning of the Margaret Eaton School of Literature and Expression established in 1905. She was also a devotee of art and ever a generous patron of artists. Recently she made a notable contribution to the Toronto Art Gallery in the form of a statue in marble of the famous Serbian sculptor, Ivan Mestrovic, entitled, "Mother at Prayer."

Was Always Hospitable.

Hospitality was the keynote of her home, and Mrs. Eaton had inscribed over the doorway of the Oakville home the words written by Henry VanDyke:

"The lintel low enough to keep out pomp and pride.
The threshold high enough to turn deceit
aside,
The door-bands strong enough from robbers to defend,
The door will open at a touch to every friend."

Timothy Eaton died on Jan. 31, 1907. Mrs. Eaton devotedly interested herself in the philanthropic, charitable and patriotic activities for which her son, Sir John Eaton, was widely known. She co-operated with Sir John in the building of the Timothy Eaton Memorial Church and the Surgical Wing of the Toronto General Hospital. She was recognized for her generosity in donations to churches, hospitals and charitable institutions.

Decorated by Navy League.

Mrs. Eaton's devoted service to the Navy League was recognized, when, on Oct. 18, 1927, she was decorated by that organization.

At the age of 78, thirteen years ago, she joyously accompanied her son, Sir John Eaton, in an aeroplane flight over the Muskoka Lakes. The pilot on this trip was her granddaughter's husband, Colonel William Bishop, V.C., the renowned war ace. "Mother," said Sir John after the landing, "I never was so proud of you as at this moment—seventy-eight, and a good sport." Eagerly entering into all Sir John's philanthropic, charitable and patriotic activities, co-operating with him in the building of the Timothy Eaton Memorial Church and the Surgical Wing of the General Hospital; intelligent, resolute, merry and perpetually young, she commanded the affection of all. Her donations to churches, hospitals, and many charitable institutions had earned for her the gratitude of thousands. She was a notable mother, and a woman of high distinction, greatly beloved for her charm of personality, for her cheerful disposition, for her buoyancy of spirit and her youthful outlook on life.

Mrs. Eaton was predeceased by her son, Sir John, who had a notable career as President of the T. Eaton Company, and by two other sons, Edward Young and George, the latter drowned in childhood; also by two sons who died in infancy. Sur-
